Maria E. Gardner

Near the mouth of the St. Croix River, on Maine's eastern boundary, stands the little city of Calais, where Miss Gardner was born and spent her early years. Here, immediately after graduating from High School, she began the great adventure of teaching.

Perhaps the motto of the school committee of that day was, "Only the able should survive," for they invited her to take charge of an ungraded school of forty-two pupils whose ages ranged from five to nineteen years.

After nine years of fine service to her town and pupils alike, Miss Gardner joined the procession of the hundreds of Maine teachers called to advancement in the schools of Massachusetts. Following a brief teaching period in Provincetown, she taught for two years in Quincy.

From Quincy, Miss Gardner went to Newton remaining for eight years; then she came to Brookline where she was a teacher for twenty years in the Pierce School. How splendid was her service there, all her fellow-workers well remember. It was yeoman service without noticeable comment upon high standards or noble ideals, for she made these abstractions very real to her pupils. Her motto might well have been "No child shall leave this class without a gift from me", although there was no self-aggrandisement because of the spirit in which her work was performed. With the abolishing of the ninth grade, Miss Gardner was called to the French Department in the High School. Here she met the new demands with her usual efficient readiness. Two summers were spent in the study of French at Middlebury College, Vermont. Then came several entire summers profitably lived in the home of a cultivated French family. Two other summers were made most valuable and enjoyable by trips to Europe, where one was devoted to travel and the other to study at the Sorbonne and the Alliance Francáis.

Such arduous study, unbroken throughout this teacher's twelve years' service, has not only enriched her power and given continued interest to her classes for mastery of the language, but also has helped to interpret to them the history and literature of the French culture.

It is thro the kind of teaching Miss Gardner has given, the firm holding of her pupils to the completion of each piece of work, and keeping to her own tasks with unfailing rigor, that these boys and girls can look forward to their great tasks of the future with courage and a quiet heart.

Life has no better gift to offer to an honored teacher than this faith.

Florence Barnard

At the recent Institute of Character Developing Forces in Boston, our State Commissioner of Education, Dr. Payson Smith, gave utterance to his conviction that the subject of Money Management should rank next to Health in importance as a part of the modern school curriculum. His opinion is rapidly coming to be shared by people of all walks of life, and has been expressed by another noted educator as follows:

> "Financial education should have its beginnings the minute a child starts to think in terms of money, and should continue thereafter by means of allowances at home, specific teaching in all the schools, and advanced courses in college that are required for a degree."

Brookline has the distinction of being the first place in the country, if not in the world, to include Money Management in its curriculum, and Miss Florence Barnard was the one appointed in the fall of 1928 to become the first Manager of Economic Education throughout a public school system. Years of intensive study, on the problem of how human beings can live well-rounded, well-balanced lives through the scientific management of money, had qualified Miss Barnard for this position.

By experimentation since that time, she has evolved a thoroughly practical and skillfully educative plan for strengthening and stabilizing the foundations of our whole financial structure. Her method makes vivid the fact that out of the wise use of money (regardless of the size of income) there is a growing appreciation and acquirement of spiritual values which result in enrichment of life for the individual. It also carries with it a high moral training that is significant and fundamental for social progress.

Miss Barnard's activities in the field of Economics have extended far beyond Brookline. Among the ways she has been and is at present serving are the following:

As Chairman of the Economic Committee of the Massachusetts Teachers' Federation. Chairman of the Economic Education Committee of the Massachusetts Parent-Teacher Association, Member of the National Education Association Committee (of five) on the Economic Status of the Teacher, Member of the N. E. A. Committee on Home Economics, Member of the Council of the American Provident Society. She is also the author of the "Outline on Thrift Education" which, in a nation-wide contest open to all teachers, received first prize from the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

Her special abilities in this field and the value of her work have come to be recognized by leaders of organizations of widely varying interests, such as: Better Business Bureaus; National Council of Superintendents; General Federation of Women's Clubs; American Bankers' Association; State and National Girl Scouts; National Congress of Parents and Teachers; National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs as well as Y. W. C. A. and Rotary Club groups.

Formal recognition was given to Miss Barnard's work by Congresswoman Rogers in a speech before the House of Representatives on July 14, 1932, and by the introduction before Congress of a Joint Resolution Dec. 7, 1932: "That the Commissioner of Education in the Department of the Interior is authorized and directed to collect full information concerning the Florence Barnard plan of time and money management, to make a study of such plan, and to make such information and the results of such study available for the use of the schools and the people throughout the United States."

Because of the call for activity in these wider fields, Miss Barnard is soon to withdraw from active service in Brookline. Through her many years of devotion to the cause of education in this town, her qualities of mind and heart have won for her the loyalty of all students and fellow-teachers who have known her well. We shall miss her from our midst, and wish for her the success and satisfaction that her faithfulness and contribution merit.

Class President's Address

PARENTS, FACULTY MEMBERS, CLASSMATES, FRIENDS:

This occasion is the final voluntary gathering of the Class of 1933 as a unit. At such an assemblage it is fitting that the parents of the graduating class should be mentioned first. We feel not only that they have aided us to reach this day, but that if it is within our power to be successful and happy in the road that lies ahead, the attainment of our common goal will be with the thought of their guiding hand, steady and true as it has proved to be. To the faculty members here present we extend a sincere welcome. We shall always treasure memories of the friendship and understanding that you have shown toward us, for the remembrance of pleasing contacts with refreshing personalities can never be wrested from our minds. I am pleased to convey also to the people of the town of Brookline the appreciative thanks of the Senior Class for their valuable aid in nurturing Brookline High School to its present stage of development. It is with these thoughts that we ask you all to join us in our Class Day festivities.

As we betake ourselves from the crowded field outside, with its color and brilliance, into the quiet peacefulness of this room we are offered a last hour to recall the past, to search as best we can into the future. And thus it is the spirit of the evening to blend with the memory of books and classes the recollection of interesting, essential moments that have merged to form the more vital portion of our stay within these walls.

This, then, is the explanation of the presence of our Historians whom we have chosen to recall to our minds the events of four significant years. Thus the learned Lawyer of our choice, who will account for the defrayment of our funeral expenses, our bequests. and other weighty matters is present tonight. Finally, the Class Orator and the Class Poet are in attendance to express our inner thoughts upon the contemplation of our departure, upon the hopes and ambitions that we hold for the coming years.

It is a moment, then, of happiness, unprecedented in the history of the Class of 1933. May it be a joyous and memorable occasion!

George Mackey

Class Oration

Graduation has been truly called the open portal thru which a student passes to the vast field of unlimited opportunity called "Life". As we stand on the threshold today eager, yet hesitant, to start on our journey, we pause for reflection.

We, the Class of 1933, are living under most unusual conditions. All about us we see changes, and it is fitting that we pay particular attention to discern in what direction we are headed. We should try to discover the imperative need of the hour, and then to fit our lives to that need. There is no time more fitting than the present for such a task. What then, is this imperative need in America? Namely, that we must have leaders with a new type of mind—great, towering beacon-lights in a darkened, nervous world. Today because the world is in a state of upheaval, and the financial condition of countries is without a parallel in history, there is a great demand for men who really think. For the past few years we have endured privation, been acquainted with sorrow and suffering. In order to mount upward we must propagate this new deal started by our President, a man who is destined to become immortal in world history. Behind him are tremendous triumphs; before him are gigantic obstacles. But one man cannot do it all. In every nation, in every state, in every city and hamlet, there must also be men of vision and courage, men who have "strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and ready hands"; men who dare blaze unknown trails. Never before has American citizenship been so challenged to forget its selfishness and to minister to a needy world. We know that, however poor we may be, we are richer than the greatest of men who lived but few generations ago.

We are not experiencing an unique condition, for mankind in every age has had its crisis; every generation has faced a supreme menace just as dangerous, just as insidious as the present one. But this state of upheaval, which the world is in, is all our own to combat. The enticements which are trying us are not the temptations which beset other footsteps, nor the perils which threaten our pathway, the hazards which surrounded them.

It is to you that the world looks for an answer. Mussolini, the erudite Premier of Italy, said, "I look to the youth of Italy for the progress of the Fascist state." It is youth that has become Communism's hope for world dominion. It is only in you then, that there can be given discipline of mind, respect for law, and interested zeal for the public welfare. For this reason I am appealing to you, tonight, in behalf of America, nay even the world. Comparatively few of us will ever attain positions of leadership. Nevertheless, it is in such schools as Brookline provides that we receive training in critical thinking and evaluation of facts. If we have the initiative and the courage to apply this training to the affairs of society, we can be an influential group of intelligent and active followers. Today we must act. America needs us to see her through these trying times. She cannot wait. Events move on. Now is the time to relinquish our positions as idle spectators and take our rightful place on the field of action. If we answer this call as responsible citizens, leadership will be strengthened, the ranks of intelligent followers will be tremendously augmented, and America shall not have called in vain. "How can we do it," is the vital question asked, "since we all cannot be leaders?" Your duty is to mould constructive opinions, to be a cheerful optimist, and to see situations in a favorable light. As James Bryce in his "American Commonwealth" said, "Towering over Presidents and State Governors, over Congress and State Legislators, over conventions and the vast machinery of party, public opinion in the United States stands as the great source of power, the master of servants who tremble before it."

Today despite field after field of human endeavor calling for leadership, many people are unimaginative in their view of the future. But our progress will not come from those who despair: rather will it come from those who have courage, vision, and faith and who say with Josiah Gilbert Holland:

"God give us men. The time demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and willing hands;
Men whom the lust of office cannot kill,
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy,
MEN WHO POSSESS OPINIONS AND A WILL."

BERNARD VALKENIER

Class Song

NOW the Class of Thirty-three
Has met the parting of the way,
Soon to be in memory
Our guiding star alway.
Beacon light for all our futures,
Inspiration on thru life,
Home of hopes and fears, these last four years
We will cheer old Brookline High.

Refrain

Honor and hope and faith you've brought us,
Patience and fortitude you've taught us
Classmates and beloved teachers,
Fare thee well, dear Brookline High.

Words and Music by Leonard LaRenier
March
Now the Class of thirty three has met the parting of the way Torn to be in ma-mory - Four guiding star al-way. Beacon light of all our future, Inspiration on through life ---Home of hope and fears three last your years, We will Refrain
Over old Brookline High Honor and hope and faith you've brought us Patience and fortitude you have taught us Classmates and revered teachers Fare thee well dear Brookline High

EDGAR HIRSHBERG

To E. H. S.

Two trudged along a straight and level road.
The dying embers of the setting sun
Gleamed in their eyes; his race was run;
He slowly sank into his night abode.
All day he'd shone with brilliance; now he glowed
With quiet calm, as if the day, now done,
Had given him some peace or profit—won
The right of freedom from his daily load.

Said one, "I'm glad I'm not the sun! He works
And works, but nothing from his toil he gains,
Save temporary rest behind some wood."
The other said, "Not be the sun! where lurks
The selfless will to ease all earthly pains,
To banish evil, and to summon good!"

Time marches on
(Orchestra plays "Auld Lang Syne")

September 9, 1929

Four hundred eager, bright students entered the portals of this institution of erudition, to be met by a helpful, sympathetic mob of so-called upper classmen.

(Sketch depicting the life of a Freshman in the first week of school.)
Time marches on. We engage in Politics.

William Lett, Sanborn Vincent, Vernon Jewett, and Irving Lewis, alias Rupert Lewis, were elected, after a "stiff" battle, to lead the class for the ensuing year. On account of our remarkable intellect which baffled the faculty, we were invited to elect members of our class to the Marshal Force, Court of Justice, and Teacher-Student Council.

Time marches on.
"Touchdown," selection by Orchestra
Cheer given by Peggy Wilder and Louis Bonelli.

One of the most successful football and baseball teams was turned out by the boys of this class. It also showed its musical inclination when twenty of its members gained positions in the Varsity orchestra, Band, and Glee Club.

What a beginning! What a class!

(Orchestra plays "Auld Lang Syne.")
A vacation and time marches on.

1930.

Renewed vigor accompanied the class on its second rung of the ladder to fame. William Lett, the pupils' choice, was reelected to hold the reins of government assisted by Norma Marcus, Roger Bernhardt, and Vernon Jewett.

The class was particularly proud of Roger Bernhardt who won first place in Prize Speaking, an achievement rarely gained by a Sophomore. He also scored a distinctive success as the leading man, Grumpy, in the annual dramatic production.

(A selection from "Finger of God" given by Roger Bernhardt.)

Edgar Hirshberg as Sports Editor, and George Hartstone as Circulation Manager helped the Sagamore through a very profitable year.

The boys' sports were aided by many students, seven receiving letters, while the girls were equally alert in their activities.

With these enviable records in both scholastic and extra-curricula activities, the class after a much deserved vacation, started to look forward to the fulfillment of another successful year.

Time marches on.
(Orchestra plays "We Want Bernhardt.")

1931.

With Roger Bernhardt's hat in the ring Brookline High School evidenced a big political upheaval, Roger receiving command, with Norma Marcus his chief aid, Warren Fox his scribe, and Eileen McElroy his quarter-master. Because of the high scholastic standing and all around participation in outside activities, four members of the class, Anna Geoghegan, Norman Marcus, Roger Bernhardt, and Elizabeth Howard were admitted to Alpha Pi, the much coveted honor.

Again Bernhardt scored a huge success as leading man of Dramatics, this time aided by George Hawley and Warren Fox. The student staff behind the scenes was incalculably aided by five more members of the class of 1933.

(Orchestra plays Minuet.)

In the Washington Play, a Bicentennial observance, Irving Cohen gracefully danced his way to fame (The Clumsy Ox).

("Zwei Hertzen" played by Orchestra.)

The ranks of the language clubs were swelled by the addition of our Juniors, Doris Reimer and Marion Phillips leading the Cercle Francais as did Norma Marcus the Die Deutsche Gesellschafft.

Other organizations needed some of the overpowering ability of '33, and Warren Fox took charge of the Junior Red Cross and represented the B. H. S. unit at the national convention in Washington, D. C., where he was honored with a handshake by President Hoover.

Orchestra repeats "We Want Roosevelt."
Orchestra plays "Harvardiane."

Our outstanding athletic ability was shown by James "Lefty" Cahill who received letters in baseball and football, by Eddie Rae, high scorer in track and baseball, and by Art Soderberg who was elected to carry the football team to victory the next year. B. H. S. may also be well proud of the accomplishments of our human fish, Fred Wiggin, champion back stroke swimmer, and of Captain Williams, champion free-style swimmer. Five of the eight positions on the swimming team were upheld by us. Outstanding performances were also shown by Captain Enright, and by Ralph Plotkin, our jumper, while on the tennis courts, Lewis Lappin, Paul Silbert, and lanky Bill Lebowich, captain, demonstrated their prowess as big "Bills."

Five '33 girls led the field hockey team through an undefeated season, and our mermaid, Peggy Wilder, manager of the swimming team, dived her way to the championship of New England.

A vacation in the nick of time prevented the noble Class of 1933 from stepping past the seniors. Lucky break!

Time marches on.
Orchestra plays "Chopin's Funeral March.

September, 1932. Back to school. Seniors! What a feeling!

If past accomplishments are any criterion of the future, then the Class of 1933 was assured this year would furnish a brilliant climax for all its achievements, and it eagerly looked forward to its fulfillment.

Orchestra "We Want Bernhardt."

Realizing that much had to be done before the golden day of graduation, the class immediately elected Roger Bernhardt to continue his work as executive, Elizabeth Howard, vice-president, Joe Malone, chancellor of the exchequer, and Warren Fox, secretary.

The Teacher-Student Council accomplished some excellent work under the able leadership of Roger Bernhardt, Joe Malone, and Fred Wiggin.

The judiciary of the student government was used to a greater degree this year with Warren Fox as Chief Justice, Roger Bernhardt as clerk, and Miss Howard and Joe Malone as justices. Many decisions were rendered fairly and justly to compensate certain students for their misdeeds.

The dramatic performance for the Boys' Scholarship Fund and immeasurably aided by our well-known actors, Stanley Driscoll, George Hawley, and Donald Graham. The latter also gained equal acclaim of the audience with his remarkable rendition at Prize Speaking.

Joan Rines, Marjorie Frank, Evelyn Lupton, the linguists, presided over the French Club, the German Club and the Spanish Club, respectively. Lorraine Wood was elected Vice-President of the Girls' League in 1931, and the following year Jane McKnight was chosen President, with Eileen McElroy, Treasurer, and Evelyn Lupton, Secretary.

The coveted key of Alpha Pi was won in this last year by many well-deserving and diligent students who have displayed what the name signifies, excellence and leadership.

Barbara Gordon manifested her talent in art by creating a poster which won the first award offered by the Health Department.

The current year has been an exceptionally opulent one in athletics; the Track Team received golden shoes for placing first in the State Meet. Among the notable girl athletes Elizabeth Howard, Mary Taylor, and Peggy Wilder headed the ranks, as captains of field hockey, tennis, and swimming.

The maestros Ruth Wolf, Bernard Valkenier, Stanley Driscoll, and Irving Cohen contributed their fine musical ability to that grand and glorious orchestra of our school.

Thus, the review of these four years forms a climax for the brilliant accomplishments and exemplary achievements of this Class of 1933.

Time now halts for the Class of 1933.
Orchestra—Auld Lang Syne.

Last Will and Testament

Be it hereby known to all: that we, the class of 1933 of the Brookline High School in Brookline and in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, being of sound mind and memory, but realizing the uncertainty of this life, do make and proclaim this to be our last will and testament, hereby revoking all wills heretofore made by us.

After the payment of our just debts and funeral charges, we bequeath and devise as follows:

First: In token of our appreciation of their friendship, and in memory of services rendered, we, the class of 1933 of the Brookline High School, leave to the faculty of this school our best wishes, and our regrets that we have nothing of a more material nature with which to reward them as they justly deserve.

Second: To the undergraduates we leave from one to several years more in this noble institution — and our heartfelt sympathies.

Third: Roger Bernhardt leaves to the person, or persons, capable of fulfilling the requirements, his abilities in the many varied fields of high school activities.

Fourth: To the forgotten Alumni, recently deceased, we, who are about to follow, leave one geranium plant and a gargoyle to water it.

Fifth: To Mr. Bemis we leave one bottle of Sloan's liniment with the hope that he'll need it.

Sixth: To Mr. Ringer we leave our orange neckties.

Seventh: We leave our ghost to haunt Mr. Gifford.

Eighth: Bob Schmidt leaves two hands to anybody with a vehicle large enough to transport them.

Ninth: Ralph Plotkin leaves Alan Swartz the chance to do his own Latin homelessons.

Tenth: "Mike" Kadetsky leaves Ethel Bratt to shift for herself.

Eleventh: Ruth Wolf leaves the stories of her private affairs to any sap who'll listen to them.

Twelfth: George Hartstone leaves his air of authority to somebody who has a right to possess it.

Thirteenth: Charlie Nyhan leaves the High School for good. (We hope.)

Fourteenth: Kate Cropper leaves six inches of height to David Wolper, with the provision that he use them before he attains the age of fifty.

Fifteenth: To George Ware we leave one red necktie and lots of advice.

Sixteenth: We leave Lawrence Daniels plenty of rope, in the hope the old adage holds true.

Seventeenth: Ralph Kaye and Sherman Rose leave one greasy, soiled, and much thumb-marked deck of cards to Mel Matuson.

Eighteenth: We leave time and experience to change Eliot Silverman's accent.

Nineteenth: To Muriel Baer we leave one pair of shoulder pads and a football helmet.

Twentieth: George Mackey leaves one "hot-air" heating system to the B.H.S.

Twenty-first: Joe Malone leaves the girls until they get baptized.

Twenty-second: To Charlie Small we leave one box of yellow and purple pansies, if Small promises to care for them carefully.

Twenty-third: We leave Priscilla Dienes for the squirrels to get.

Twenty-fourth: Norma Marcus leaves her talent for "petty" flirtations to Bernice Halpern, also with a few words of advice.

Twenty-fifth: Edgar Hirshberg leaves his powerful mentality to any Junior in need of a brain storm.

Twenty-sixth: Leon Feffer leaves his record for Carl Gustafson to break.

Twenty-seventh: Laurence Lehneman leaves his technique with the fair sex to Irving Perkins who can surely make use of it.

Twenty-eighth: Evelyn Bluestein leaves her cutting wit to be sharpened.

Twenty-ninth: Sylvia Dulman leaves her fingernails for Bob Malone to chew.

Thirtieth: We leave to anybody the pleasant task of doing to Alan Kaufman what his parents should have done when Alan was born.

Thirty-first: Paul Silbert leaves his practice history college board answers to Lewis Lappin.

Thirty-second: Frank Robinson leaves one slug machine and a nickel (if they can get it) to Mel Ross and Bernie Singer.

Thirty-third: Bill Lebowich leaves his mouth for the entrance to any new subway.

Thirty-fourth: Franklin Richardson leaves his "broad"-mindedness to any bashful freshman.

Thirty-fifth: Barbara Gordon leaves her posture to the "Hunch-back of Notre Dame."

Thirty-sixth: We leave our congratulations to "Daddy" Corcoran.

Thirty-seventh: And last (but not least) we leave the rest of the class of 1933 to graduate within the expiration of two years.

We hereby nominate and appoint as executor, Mr. B. D. Roman, and request that he be exempt from giving any surety on his bond, as such.

Signed,

THE CLASS OF NINETEEN HUNDRED AND THIRTY-THREE.

In testimony whereof, we, the Class of 1933, have signed, published, and declared this to be our last will and testament in the presence of the undersigned, who at our request, in our presence, and in the presence of each other have hereto subscribed their names as witnesses to said will.

Several of our outstanding members have attained that pinnacle of achievement in all our activities, namely membership in Alpha Pi.

Other laurels have been gained by those Juniors who have shown their ability and sportsmanship in swimming, track, football, dramatics, and editorial work. The class has furnished an important member of the swimming team, the N.E.A.A.U. and State Champion in the high jump, a winner in prize speaking, and the Editors of The Sagamore.

Thus, the Juniors have held to their standard of leadership and good sportmanship which they seem to have set for themselves at the commencement of their high school career.

Another highly profitable year has passed, and we have come up from the lowly rank of Freshman, and filled the vacancy left by the former Sophomore Class. And well have we filled it! For ours seems to be a class gifted with all sorts of talents. For example:—Seven members of our class took part in Prize Speaking, one of whom took first honors, and another, honorable mention. Approximately fifteen had important roles in the Scholarship Dramatics. As to our musical talent, many an assembly has been heralded by the harmonious strains of our most excellent orchestra. In the sporting world, our boys have not been idle. They have played an important part in track, swimming, baseball, and tennis. The girls have held up the standard by a very successful basketball season.

To make a long story short, we feel that we have cheerfully and competently carried our share of the burden and have proved ourselves true sons of Brookline High School.

At the beginning of September the class of 1936 started its career at Brookline High School.

Since that time many things have happened, all of which predict a brilliant future for this class. Two of our members were in the finals of Prize Speaking, while three others were among the cast of Scholarship Dramatics. In athletics the Freshmen as a whole have maintained an excellent record. Two boys made the swimming team. The girls also have held their place; many of them are on the second varsity teams of different sports.

With such a beginning as this and with so much promising material, the class of '36 hopes for even more successful years in the future.

The Teacher-Student Council is an Advisory Body consisting of nine teachers elected by the Faculty, nine pupils, chosen by the Student Body, and the Captain of the Marshals. Its avowed purpose is to assist the Head Master in his attempt to make B. H. S. a leader in culture, refinement, self-discipline, and scholastic attainments. Its active agents are the Marshals and its right arm is the Court of Justice. Meetings, at which every conceivable matter looking to the good of the school is taken up and discussed with the utmost freedom by pupils and teachers alike, are held once a month in the Faculty Room. Its action upon matters of importance is final, subject only to revision by the Head Master.

The Court of Justice, the judicial branch of the student government system, is most necessary in adjusting students to social relationships in life. Without its guiding hand these pupils would perhaps enter the outer world with this essential ability to keep their rightful places in society, undeveloped.

Within its portals the cases of the students are heard, judged, and dealt with by their every day companions in a most dependable and just fashion. Such cases are referred directly to the Court by the Headmaster, Captain of the Marshals, and the Teacher-Student Council. The approval of the Headmaster is attached to all decisions making them rigid and subject to enforcement.

With the addition of the new wing this year, there was, of necessity, an increase in the enrollment of marshals. This year, as in every year, the Marshal force has done its work successfully and with that fine spirit and willingness which is so characteristic of Brookline High School students.

The Captain and his Assistant take this opportunity to thank the marshals, the faculty, and the student body for their splendid co-operation throughout the year.

The Girls' League started this year with a membership of six hundred. The purpose of the League is to establish a spirit of good fellowship and loyalty among the girls of the school, and to inspire in each individual an interest in its activities.

Three successful acquaintance parties were given in October by the Senior Advisors. The Hallowe'en Party took place on October 31. In November a lively Thanksgiving Party won great acclaim. The admission to this party was either vegetables or canned goods. At the Christmas Party, scrapbooks, rag dolls, and toys were made and given for the less fortunate children of the hospitals and Brookline Friendly Society. The Seniors held a social afternoon in March, at which time they gave a play. The Mothers' Teas of the various classes proved to be very successful. The boys and their mothers were invited this year. An Eighth Grade Party in April made many friends among the Freshman girls of next year and members of the League.

We were very fortunate in obtaining an office of our own this year, which has proved of great value to the League.

A part of the lunch room was given to the Senior Advisors the first of the year. This was used to get better acquainted with the Freshmen.

All committees, advisors, councilors, and home room representatives have generously co-operated to promote good fellowship in the school.

Upon the decision of the Honorary Society of last year, the admission requirements to Alpha Pi were raised from six to eight points. Under this new ruling, four points must be gained through high scholarship and four by means of extra-curricula activities. A special system of points is devised for all activities which count toward Alpha Pi membership. The member gaining the greatest number of points is awarded the office of president, while the one receiving the second highest amount is made secretary-treasurer.

Membership in Alpha Pi is the ambition of every Brookline High student and thus is an indication of the true worth of every applicant who succeeds in securing this honor. Although the higher standards resulted in a decreased membership, it denoted an increase in competitive interest and a revitalized enthusiasm on the part of the student body.

The Sagamore has attempted this year to combine the news columns with the literary in more nearly equal representation; it has drawn from an increasing number of students from all classes for its contributions. Interest has been stimulated in the writing of poetry, essays and short-stories, through its pages. Also in its columns have appeared items of interest concerning former graduates, calendars and records of the school life, and comments not only on affairs at large, but also on many small affairs less important but often more amusing.

Much credit is due the Brookline High School Printing Department and Mr. Carl Smith, the director. The Sagamore has the distinction of being one of the few high school newspapers published within the school.

DEBATING

ELIOT N. SILVERMAN, President

LEIGH DIMOND, Moderator

JUNE BRADFIELD, Secretary

MISS HANNON, Faculty Advisor

Although handicapped by the fact that many of its members are occupied with various other extra-curricula activities, the Debating Society has in this, its first year of existence, held four intra-mural debates, and, in addition, accepted the challenge of the Durrell Society of the Cambridge High and Latin School.

For this debate the following men were chosen: Leigh Dimond, Norman Hunt, and Eliot Silverman. They supported the negative of the proposition—Resolved: That the United States should agree to the immediate cancellation of inter-allied war debts. Rebuttal was handled by Silverman.

Although the decision was 2 to 1 in favor of Cambridge, the Brookline team has had the satisfaction of working on a real problem, and of matching wits with a worthy opponent. Moreover, this meeting offers the hope of renewal of debating as an established activity in the Brookline High School.

The Library Staff of Brookline High School is a purely voluntary organization. The members must be passing in all studies and must belong to the Girls' League. The staff takes care of attendance slips, does simple mending, makes temporary charging cards for books borrowed from the Brookline Public Library, checks magazines and prepares them for circulation, files pamphlet material, and does errands for the Library.

This year, under the auspices of the Library and the English Department a Scott project was worked out, culminating in the presentation of scenes from "Ivanhoe" in the Assembly Program at which the President of the club presided. A party was held in November in memory of Miss Alcott. A few of the members presented scenes from "Little Women", and all participated in old-fashioned games. In February all enjoyed a poetry tea at which Miss Jones and Miss Lewis read from their own poems and from those of modern writers.

On Tuesday, March 21, a very successful meeting of the library clubs of Boston and vicinity was held in the Girls' League Room. Mrs. Siebens opened the meeting, and presented Grace Coughlan, President of the Staff. A short musical program was given, following which Miss Sawyer, Mr. Caverly, and Mr. Ringer spoke briefly. There were reports from representatives of library clubs in neighboring schools, explaining the functions of the clubs in their respective schools. The guests were afterwards invited to the Faculty Room for refreshments and a social meeting. The members of the Library Staff showed the guests to the school library, and other parts of the school building. The object of this meeting was to allow the members of school library clubs to become acquainted with one another and with the activities of the various clubs.

The Four-Minute Speakers were reorganized this year under the supervision of Miss Johnson. Officers were elected and the organization took its helpful stand in the school.

It was an extremely profitable year. The members increased their experience; the demand for them was increased; and the number of members in the organization itself was augmented.

At the meetings, commonly held every other week, advice was offered and plans were made for the next speeches to be given. The following subjects were presented to the school through the members: the Work of the Guidance Department, the Red Cross Moving Picture Show, Good Citizenship in the School, Money Management, and the Year Book.

With so many experienced undergraduates this group feels confident to resume its good work next year.

This year the Spanish Club has carried on with a slight increase in its membership. The meetings held in the new Foreign Center have been successful and enjoyable; successful because the rule of the Club to have only Spanish spoken has been cheerfully followed, and enjoyable, as our minds and our ingenuity were developed by conversing in Spanish while playing the games which proved to be favorites among the members. A number of enjoyable bridge parties was also held.

Two plays have been presented by the club during the year, in one of which Senora Pardo, a concert singer from Madrid, kindly sang for us. The Spanish Club also sponsored the assembly program presented for Columbus Day.

The French Club has tried to add to the interest and enjoyment of students in the French Department. An opportunity is given to speak French, thus supplementing the work of the Department. This year there was a most interesting and profitable talk on Soviet Russia given by Mlle. Renouard of the Winsor School, a lecture on Montaigne, by Mr. Wallace Fowlie '26, instructor in French at Harvard. At one meeting, members of the club presented a simplified version of Moliere's "Le Medecin Malgre Lui." At this meeting there was an interesting musical program by Mrs. Hazel Henry Jewett and Carol Adams. Members of the different Freshman Classes gave recitations.

In all it has been an enjoyable and interesting program, and we are confident it will continue to be so in the future.

The German Club has brought to a close an exceedingly enjoyable year. The annual Christmas party was as usual, a huge success. Later in the year the club was very fortunate in having Professor Peebles of Boston University as their guest. He delivered a most interesting speech on Germany, illustrated by slides.

HIGH SCHOOL TROOP

Captain, Miss Poland

Lieutenants, Miss Nichols, Miss Robertson

Scribe, Jean Murray '33

Patrol Leaders, Jean Murray '33, Evelyn Adler '34

Emergency Room Aide, Evelyn Adler '34

The troop has had a very successful year with a membership of twenty-three. Some of the Scouts are already first class and others are to receive first and second class badges soon.

There were several hikes in the fall, including an overnight hike to Cedar Hill. Second class tests in fire building and cooking, and first class camp craft were passed on these hikes.

The troop has contributed much to Community Service. The Scouts have aided in the Emergency Room during their study periods. At the troop meetings, the Scouts made garments for the Needlewoman's Guild, which were distributed to the needy in Brookline. At Christmas time they aided the Girls' League in making scrap books, oilcloth animals, rag dolls, in collecting books, and in dressing dolls. At the presentation of the Girl Scout Play, "The Rackety-Packety House," the troop ushered. At the Visual Education Conference, the troop helped in the lunchroom.

Work has been done on many badges in the troop. Mothers' teas have been a part of the work for the Hostess Badge. Trips to Franklin Park have helped secure the Nature Badge. The girls made a miniature camp site, in which are demonstrated the knots, a requirement for the Tenderfoot test, for the Girl Scout exhibit in the Public Library.

Two girls from this troop, Evelyn Greenspan and Marie Murphy, were delegates to the annual conference in Cambridge.

The Junior Red Cross has completed another successful year of service. The annual rollcall, toy collection, and eyeglass drives helped to make many a needy family happy during the winter. Thousands of surgical dressings were made by the Juniors and given to several hospitals in Boston.

A group of twenty-five volunteers attended a course in "First Aid" conducted by Mr. Johnson from the Red Cross Headquarters.

This year for the first time in the history of this school, a motion picture show was sponsored by the Junior Red Cross. Every student and teacher in the school supported this drive enthusiastically, and it turned out to be one of the biggest successes of the year, the proceeds being appropriated for the following: the Milk Fund, eyeglasses, First Aid books, the National Children's Fund, Emergency Fund, Chelsea Naval Hospital, Brookline Friendly Society, and the Junior Journal and Courier.

Mildred Friedman was sent to Washington as delegate to the National Convention of the Junior Red Cross, where many new ideas were suggested for next year, which promises to be another one of successful service.

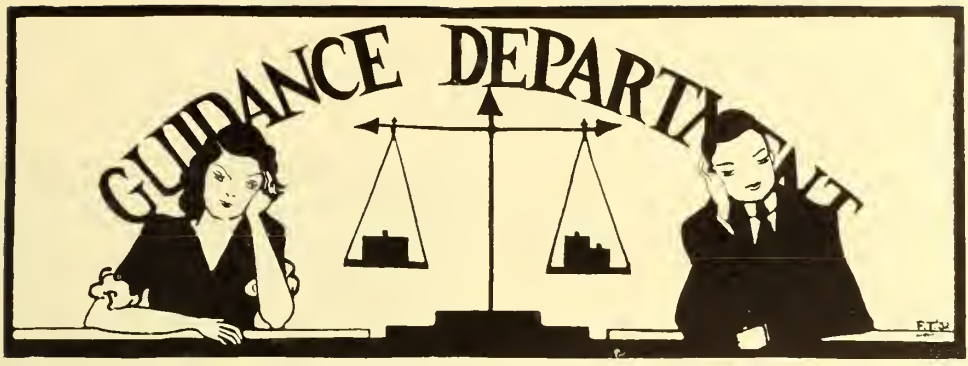
The Domestic Science Club is composed of girls from the Domestic Science classes.

The Club has had very interesting meetings including a business meeting, entertainments, and the election of officers, and an entertainment arranged by Grace Coughlan whose father showed some of his travel pictures. These moving pictures included scenes in California, stormy days at Scituate, Massachusetts, mountain scenes in the White Mountains and a few comedies.

A lecture on "Sunday Night Suppers" was given by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company in which the demonstrators brought out the use of labor-saving devices and equipment.



Director, John V. Jewett

In November of the past year the Guidance Department entered its new offices in Room 23. With this location closer to the heart of the school a tremendous increase of service has been possible and the student body has found consultation with the Guidance Department much easier.

Six teachers in the capacity of counselors have voluntarily rendered to the Freshman Class guidance during each period of the day. These freshman guidance periods have corresponded to the group-meeting periods of the freshman groups.

A distinct advance has been taken along the line of visual aids to instruction. The Guidance Department has already on file many still pictures of the various activities of the school and has an interesting library of moving pictures which will be used to introduce the high school to the eighth grade pupils.

Guidance activity rests now, as it did in the beginning and always shall as long as the present directorship holds, upon the simple element of rendering the best assistance possible for the needs of pupils, teacher and parent.

The John C. Packard Laboratories

The John C. Packard Laboratories

The event of the year was the completion of the New Unit of the High School, and the Dedication of the John C. Packard Laboratories, named after the Dean of the Faculty and the Head of the Department of Science, to whose untiring patience and inborn genius was due in large measure, the excellent design and equipment of this wonderful suite of rooms.

It consists of eight principal rooms arranged as follows: two for General Science; two for Biology; two for Chemistry; and two for Physics, with an extremely well equipped apparatus room between each pair. In addition to these main rooms, there is a visual education room wherein are shown moving pictures and lantern slides. Lectures can also be delivered in this room. There is a workshop to contain a scrollsaw, upright drill, lathe, carpenter's bench and necessary tools, a dark room for developing photographs and a dynamo room which is also to be fitted with an air-compressing machine.

Mr. Packard, the head of the department, has an office in the center of the group.

The unit of instruction is to be twenty-four and the laboratories have been seated accordingly.

One of the physics laboratories is to be devoted to the teaching of practical applied physics, and the other to the teaching of the college preparatory course.

It is proposed to teach the biology hereafter from the use of living plants, and animals. To this end the biology rooms have been fitted with aquariums and two small vivariums.

The corridors have been lined with show cases which can be lighted by snapping on the switch by the side of the case. These will hold mounted animals, and the large assortment of minerals. They will also serve for the display of model ships, aeroplanes, and other designs made by students.

The football team of 1932 commenced the season handicapped by the graduation of all letter men with the exception of Alan Swartz, who was appointed Acting Captain, owing to the illness of Captain-Elect, Arthur Soderberg.

While the squad was large, it was light and inexperienced, making it difficult to turn out a victorious team. The efficient coaching of Mr. Fitzgerald and the splendid cooperation of Director Hines could not produce a winning eleven during the short season.

Considering the fact that most of the letter men will return next year, Brookline should once again earn a high place in the scholastic football season of 1933.

The nucleus for this year's swimming squad was composed of captains, Robert Richey '34, William Murray '33, Frederick Wiggin '33 and Herbert Wein '33. Never before in the history of the swimming team were there so many captains on one team!

It is difficult to comment on the showing of the team for the season, except to say that it was neither exceptionally bad nor exceedingly good. All the dual meets of the season were won with the exception of those with Pawtucket. However, when we penetrate beneath the external scores into the individual performances, we can find a better indication of where the team's strength lay.

Captain Wiggin did a fine bit of work but did not shine out so well because of the fact that his opponents were record-breakers. Robert Richey and William Murray, former captains, were the high scorers and persistent winners in all the meets. It was a privilege and an honor to watch their masterful swimming. Herbert Wein, one of the finest in the squad, held the audience spellbound more than once. It was his spectacular swimming that gained the admiration of all. Roger Bernhardt, by his remarkable breast stroke ability, made it extremely uncomfortable for the opponents. Two freshmen, Henry Cotter and George Kilman, won their letters, which was true to custom.

Due to ill health, Henry Kaplan could not swim and not only his high scoring but also his magnetic personality was missed.

Jason Silton during the season improved so much that it was almost a toss-up to see whether or not he would defeat his captain.

Brookline's first year of basketball has been highly successful. The schedule undertaken was a very difficult one, in fact, one of the most difficult undertaken by league teams. All home games were well played and Brookline emerged victorious in all but two early games. This showing is remarkable when we consider that this is the first season of basketball, the fact that practice sessions were of necessity very short and that the court is small in comparison with that of other school floors.

Team work was the outstanding characteristic of all the games and the fine co-operative spirit of the squad offered slight opportunity of brilliant individual play. The work of Captain Burton and Guard Cahill deserves special commendation, however, because of the fine leadership and ever-ready support offered in difficult situations.

January 7, 1933—Arlington 38, Brookline 39.
January 28—Northeastern Interscholastics—Second Place.
February 4—Newton 28, Brookline 49.
February 18—Andover Interscholastics—First Place.
February 25—State Meet—First Place.
March 11—Bowdoin Interscholastics—Second Place.

Never in the history of the Andover Interscholastics has an individual team garnished so many points. It is interesting to learn that Brookline won 29 points and when one compares this with the 13 points won by the team that placed second, it is quite remarkable.

This is the second time in five years that Brookline has won the State Championship.

The tennis team this year was led by Captain William Lebowich, who was the only letter man left on the squad from the campaign of the previous season.

Coach Barnes had a nucleus of veterans from whom to select a team among whom were Lewis Lappin, Paul Silbert, and Philip Ford. Bennett Ulin, a comparatively newcomer, showed creditable promise. Although the annual Dean Road tournament could not be held this year on account of wet weather, Mr. Barnes was able to organize a fine team which furnished sharp competition to opponents. Hirshberg arranged a schedule of nine matches, all of which were held at the Brookline courts in Dean Road.

Awarded for all-round sportsmanship and skill in athletics

Miss Brower, Miss Wheaton, Coaches

The number of girls participating in this major sport increased considerably this year and the beginners, as well as the advanced players, showed great skill and enthusiasm.

The season opened with a Hockey Play Day at Wellesley, which prepared the girls for the strenuous games to follow.

After playing the Varsity games, Miss Brower arranged an Inter-class Round Robin series of games. The games were well managed by the respective captains of the four class teams and keen competition was enjoyed by all.

The Junior All-Boston Hockey try-outs were abandoned this year and in its place was substituted a High School Hockey Play Day held at Newton. Although the try-outs were missed, the girls were able to have an entire team present at the Play Day and were able to see a huge assemblage of girls all interested in the same sport, hockey.

The winners of the Varsity letters were:

Never have we had so large a number of recruits report for girls' swimming, and likewise, never so successful a season. During the first few weeks of practice, color teams were chosen including all the members of the advanced and intermediate groups and a "continuous" meet was held. The beginners were given individual attention and at the end of the season passed various tests to prove their swimming ability.

During the season a Varsity team was selected and a fine demonstration meet was given by its members. The outstanding event for the season was the Play Day in which swimmers from Wellesley, Newton, and Needham High Schools participated. This event was even more distingushed by the first attempt to take moving pictures at the pool.

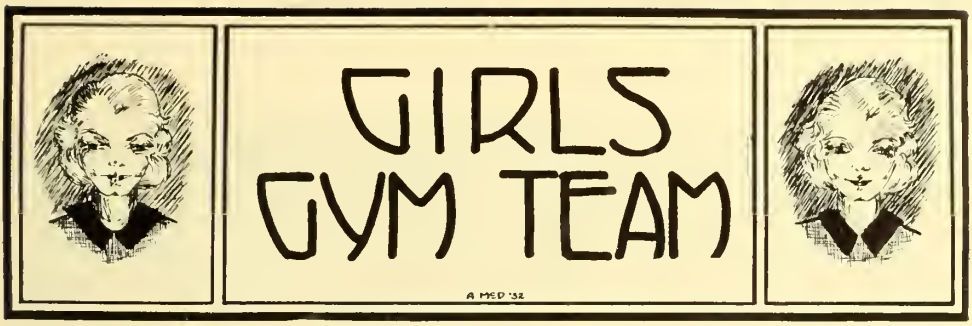
The girls' basketball season brought with it the usual amount of enthusiasm and large numbers reported for practice in each of the four classes. This year the Freshmen played at the Lincoln School because of lack of playing space at the High School.

In each group, series of games were played throughout the several weeks of practice.

Near the close of the season, class teams were chosen and interclass games played. The Junior Team was first, defeating all the other classes; the Sophomore Team second, defeating the Senior and Freshman Teams; the Senior Team, third and the Freshman Team, fourth.



Instructors, Miss Rachel L. Kelley, Miss Evelyn Johns

Gym Team, though always popular and enjoyed by many, held unusual interest this year through the incorporation of a series of group meets.

Early in the year, captains for four teams were chosen and under these same captains every girl worked faithfully throughout the season.

Each week a competition between the teams was held and both the scores for the whole team and the individual scores were kept. The sixteen girls with the highest scores were selected for the Honorary Varsity Squad.

There were four captains:

Muriel Wallace '34

Archery

Miss Kelley and Miss Griffith, Instructors in Charge

Archery is one of the most fascinating afternoon activities for girls. During the regular weekly practice individual scores are kept. At the close of the season, those having the highest total number of points in each class become members of the class team.

With the oncoming of the spring archery season joint practice days with nearby schools may be held. The girls forming the archery team in the fall were:

Horseback riding for girls has continued to be one of the most popular activities included in the regular after-school program. At the beginning of the season, the girls are classified according to their ability and groups of beginners, intermediates, and advanced riders are formed. Each group is accompanied by a riding master as well as one of the High School instructors. The technique and confidence necessary for the enjoyment of the sport is soon acquired.

This year all of the classes have been well taken care of at the McNeilly Riding School, Chestnut Hill, Brookline. The girls who participated in riding were:

During the fall and winter seasons, the girls enjoyed weenie roasts, treasure hunts, a visit to the Children's Museum at Jamaica Pond and some exciting good times in the brisk winter air with their skiis, skates, and sleds.

This activity has been a fine experience for every one and even a larger attendance is expected during the coming year.
